W. H. FULLER'S MONETS SOLD
,"Sun" 3-14-13.
ONLY $31,400 PAID FOR THE ELEVEN PICTURES.

The Diaz Landscape Brings $18,000 at the Same Sale—Dissatisfaction of the Monet Cult—Total Receipts for the Night's Offerings Over $108,000.

The late William H. Fuller's eleven paintings by Claude Monet were sold at Mendelssohn Hall last evening for $31,400. The canvas which was the favorite of Mr. Fuller went for the highest figure of any of the collection. It was the "Dawn at Antibes," the enchanting picture which contains on the hither bank of the river the peculiar green-blue tree that has caused the painting to be spoken of sometimes as "The Blue Tree."

To this painting Mr. Fuller would return again and again when showing his Monets to friends, and each time he had an additional word or expression of admiration for it. The picture was bought by George A. Dowden of Newark for $4,500.

More persons appeared to be after the "Cliff at Pourville" than any other of the Monets, but they dropped out of the bidding as the $3,000 mark was approached, and the canvas went to Durand-Ruel for $3,100.

S. J. Bayne took the "Coast Guard at Pourville" at $3,000. Each of the Monets was started at $1,000, except "L'Aiguille d'Etretat," which started at $2,000, but this picture sold below some of the others, going at $2,700.

Some of the Monet cult in the audience became fretful when immediately after the impressionist canvases had been sold a Van Marcke went for $4,700 and a little later a Diaz, the "Landscape" (156), brought $18,000. They would have the fulness of time come at once and Monet jump into the high market value that picture buyers have put upon the older schools of painting. But nobody bid half so eagerly, so far as could be publicly seen, or half so persistently or liberally, for the impressionist paintings as for the Diaz or the Van Marcke. The Diaz brought the highest figure of the night.

Spectators half expected to hear that it was bought in the name of a footlight celebrity, but the buyer was John A. Hoagland.

The paintings sold other than Mr. Fuller's Monets, belong to the various collections, the sale of which was begun on Thursday evening. The total of last night's sale was $108,095. Thomas E. Kirby was the auctioneer.

A small panel representing the "Descent from the Cross," which belonged to the late Clarence King, that had been greatly admired when it was on exhibition by all visitors who look for art rather than pressed the belief that it was by Van Eyck, but it was catalogued merely as a Flemish painting of the sixteenth century.

Stanford White and a man who was in the company of John La Farge were the most determined of the bidders for it, and Mr. White bought it for $1,800.

The Millet "Porteuse de Lait" brought $6,000; "Twilight," by George Inness, $1,000; a Mauve water color, "Sheep Feeding," $2,300; a Barye water color, "Lion Listening," $800.

"Silence in the Wood," by Lenoir (No. 96), which was sold on Thursday evening for $700, was resold on account of that purchaser at the close of last night's sale and was bought by G. A. Dowden for $875.

The order of sale was as follows, with the titles of pictures, the names of the artists, and the buyers as given, and the prices, in order:

MONET'S PAINTINGS BRING GOOD PRICES

N. Y. Herald 3-14-03.

Eleven Examples of the Famous Impressionist's Work
Sold for $31,400.

DIAZ LANDSCAPE, $16,000

Close of the Sale of Pictures Belonging to Messrs. King, Fuller and Others.

The second and concluding night's sale of the pictures owned by the late Clarence King, Theodore Weil and William H. Fuller, and others owned by Mr. Victor Newcomb, took place at Mendelssohn Hall last evening.

There was a large attendance, and the leading dealers were all represented, while several private collectors also were present. The pictures offered were more important than those sold on Thursday evening, and the eleven examples of the French impressionistic painter, Claude Monet, owned by the late William H. Fuller, were of themselves a drawing card.

The total of the sale was $107,900 for ninety-nine canvases. This, added to the total of Thursday night's sale, $30,205, from which $75 must be deducted for a picture by Lenoir sold over last night for $625, against $700, which it brought the previous evening, makes a grand total for the 202 paintings in the collections of $138,030, a good result.

The highest figure of last night's sale was $16,000, paid by Mr. J. A. Hoagland for a superb landscape by Diaz. There was lively competition for the Monets, and the eleven examples brought a total of $31,400, or an average of nearly $3,000 each. They cost Mr. Fuller about $25,000, and were all bought within the last five years.

Mr. Dowden paid $4,500 for the "Dawn at Antibes," a good figure, and Durand-Ruel & Co. secured the next example, the brilliant "Belle Isle Sunshine," for the astonishingly low price of $1,900. This sale was made so quickly that the bidders did not realize the canvas had been sold, and a murmur of astonishment was heard. This was one of the great bargains of the sale.

Of the other Monets, Mr. James F. Sutton secured the two winter Seine landscapes for $3,500 and $2,000, respectively, and Durand-Ruel & Co. bought "Near Vertheuil" for $2,900, "Autumn" for $3,000, "Tourville Cliff" for $3,100, and "L'Aiguille d'Etretat" for $2,700. Mr. S. J. Bayne paid $3,000 for the "Coastguard Hut," Knoedler & Co. $2,100 for "Apple Blossoms," and Mr. Hugo Reisinger $2,700 for "Etretat Sunset."

The pictures that sold for $1,000 and over, with their prices and buyers, were as follows:—

Water Colors.—Turner's "Dover Cliffs," $1,250, Tooth & Sons; Mauve's "Return of the Flock," $1,625; Knoedler & Co.; Israel's "Mother and Child," $2,125, Knoedler & Co.; Neuhuys' "Sisters," $1,200, Tooth & Sons; Blommer's "At the Seashore," $1,000, Cottier & Co., and Mauve's "Sheep Feeding," $2,300, Knoedler & Co.

Oils.—Van Marcke's "Cattle in Pasture," $700, F. Housman; Diaz's "Landscape," $16,000, J. A. Hoagland; Alma-Tadema's "Shopping," $1,650, G. A. Dowden; George Inness' "Twilight," $1,000, Fishel, Adler & Schwartz; Schreyer's "Bursting Shell," $5,100, Fishel, Adler & Schwartz; Meyer von Bremen's "Family Group," $2,300, Tooth & Sons; Gerome's "Sword Dancers," $1,600, G. B. Munsill; Millet's "Porteuse de Lait," $6,000, Knoedler & Co.; Meissonier's "Standard Bearer," $1,400, Tooth & Sons; Vibert's "Favorite Flowers," $1,275, Mr. Chester; a Flemish painting of the sixteenth century, $1,000, Mr. Charles Stotsberg; Paulus Moreelse's "Portrait of a Lady," $3,000, Mr. Stanley; Nicolas Maes' "Portrait of a Gentleman," $1,400, Mr. Stanley; Berne-Bellecour's "A Camp," $1,125, H. O. Seixas, and Bougereau's "At the Fireside," $1,300, Holland Art Galleries.

CONDITIONS OF SALE

1. The highest Bidder to be the Buyer, and if any dispute arise between two or more Bidders, the Lot so in dispute shall be immediately put up again and re-sold.

2. The Auctioneer reserves the right to reject any bid which is merely a nominal or fractional advance, and therefore, in his judgment, likely to affect the Sale injuriously.

3. The Purchasers to give their names and addresses, and to pay down a cash deposit, or the whole of the Purchase-money, if required, in default of which the Lot or Lots so purchased to be immediately put up again and re-sold.

4. The Lots to be taken away at the Buyer's Expense and Risk upon the conclusion of the Sale, and the remainder of the Purchase-money to be absolutely paid, or otherwise settled for to the satisfaction of the Auctioneer, on or before delivery; in default of which the undersigned will not hold themselves responsible if the Lots be lost, stolen, damaged, or destroyed, but they will be left at the sole risk of the Purchaser.

5. While the undersigned will not hold themselves responsible for the correctness of the description, genuineness, or authenticity of, or any fault or defect in, any Lot, and make no Warranty whatever, they will, upon receiving previous to date of Sale trustworthy expert opinion in writing that any Painting or other Work of Art is not what it is represented to be, use every effort on their part to furnish proof to the contrary; failing in which, the object or objects in question will be sold subject to the declaration of the aforesaid expert, he being liable to the Owner or Owners thereof, for damage or injury occasioned thereby.

6. To prevent inaccuracy in delivery, and inconvenience in the settlement of the Purchases, no Lot can, on any account, be removed during the Sale.

7. Upon failure to comply with the above conditions, the money deposited in part payment shall be forfeited; all Lots uncleared within one day from conclusion of Sale shall be re-sold by public or private sale, without further notice, and the deficiency (if any) attending such re-sale shall be made good by the defaulter at this Sale, together with all charges attending the same. This Condition is without prejudice to the right of the Auctioneer to enforce the contract made at this Sale, without such re-sale, if he thinks fit.

ABOUT WATER COLORS

After the introduction of the oil medium, the ancient art of water-color painting dwindled in importance, being used chiefly by the illuminators and miniaturists, and by draughtsmen to tint their drawings in ink or pencil. Its revival dates from the end of the eighteenth century, when the Englishmen, Thomas Girtin and Turner, developed it into an independent and very beautiful expression of nature. They were the first of the moderns to lay in a whole picture with the local color of its parts; in fact, to paint in water colors; Girtin with a vigor of effect and execution, Turner with added delicacy of atmosphere and quality of color.

The first English Water Color Society was formed in 1804, the originators being Hills, Pyne, Shelley, Wills, Glover and Varley, with William Sawrey Gilpin as president. At first the Society had a precarious existence, but it began to flourish in 1823, when it established itself in Pall Mall East, and received in 1881 the patent, that established it as "The Royal Society of Painters in Water Colors." In 1831 a new water color society was organized, which two years later changed its name to the "New Society of Painters in Water Colors," and since 1863 has been vigorous under the title of "The Royal Institute of Painters in Water Colors." Meanwhile in France the water colorist was but ill-recognized until the marvellous verve, splendor and truth of Fortuny's paintings in that medium spurred others on to practise it and aroused sufficient enthusiasm to establish the "Société des Aquarellistes Français." Now every country has its water-color society, the dignity of the art is universally recognized, and its popularity with connoisseurs is continually increasing.

74—THE MID-DAY MEAL

This picture illustrates one of the customs of the people in the East, presumably in Asia Minor, and shows the interior of a dwelling with a family group, most of them kneeling around a low, green-painted table, each dipping his spoon into a great earthen bowl. Close at hand stands the master of the house with a little girl by his side. The interior is enriched by a niche covered with Persian tiles, by common draperies, and by a long rug spread on the mat-covered floor. There are flashes of sunlight on the left of the picture and at the end of a raised, half-enclosed passage is seen a doorway with a gleam of sunlight through the cracks.

Between us and the misty hills of the opposite shore the river's surface is encrusted with packs of floating ice. A tender rosy bloom dapples their white and green and caresses an open space of water in the front. A small island, covered with bushes and trees that interlace their rosy and violet branches, lies on the left of the middle distance, while on the farther side of the stream a long strip of island with faintest trees is just perceptible through the haze. Beyond it rises the line of snow-mantled hills, streaked with blue and rose, indistinct and vaporous, beneath a sky of tremulous flush that merges above into the most delicate dove-grey.

The road which skirts the river on the left is frozen hard, its ruts and ridges showing through the snow, while the snow lies upon the bank which borders it, between the tussets of frozen grass. In the middle distance the road winds past a clump of trees and undergrowth, their bare branches and twigs presenting a blur of brown and purple. Beside this are two figures which, with one in the farther distance and another approaching us, spot the barren road with a semblance of animation that only accentuates the general desolation of the scene. The water is lifeless, a stretch of violet gray, broken in the distance by a single boat. The opposite shore presents a low bank of snow, beyond which a faint row of poplars and a more distant snow-covered hill show against the sullen gray of the sky.

The vista of river reflects the pale dove tints and delicate blue of the sky, and the yellow, green and orange of poplars that line the left bank. The foliage presents a profusion of these tints, their brilliance softened in the quiet sunshine. Underneath the bank is moored a string of boats; one of them with scarlet hull and two of warm slate color. On the left of the picture, a little way back from the front, two silvery gray willows stand upon the projection of the bank, which is carpeted with green, and has a brownish boat tethered to its point, stretching out into the stream. In the distance, the curve of the left bank discloses a green expanse, beyond which a château, a church with spire, and two white houses which show vaguely against a hill of faint lavender hue.

The river slides before us, its polished surface broken up with flots and coagulated masses of floating ice. Blue upon the edges, whitened with snow upon their surfaces, they sweep with the sluggish stream. Where they are only scattered the water is gray, but bluer where the ice floes accumulate, and the greenish-blue and violet reflections of some poplars cross the current. These follow the line of the opposite shore, which swells out near the centre of the picture into a prominence that is thickly occupied with trees, and has upon its bank large bushes; brown and purple networks of twigs. Opposite to it in midstream are two islets, covered with similarly bushy growth. The poplars on the farther shore stand against a hilly background of snow, streaked with bluish shadows; some of them spiring up into the sky, which is filled with loose gray cloudiness, that holds a slight flush of rose above and passes imperceptibly to blue upon the left.

Through the violet haze that overhangs the horizon the sun glows, a disc of geranium red; while the sky above is a quivering greenish-blue, swept diagonally with skeins of white and warm drab clouds. The sea spreads towards us with a sliding smoothness, only dimpled with little lapping waves. They pass from indigo to pale blue or wine color in their shadows, while the gray whiteness of their surface is tinged with roseate hues, as the sunlight streams softly through the arch in the cliff and diffuses itself over the uninterrupted water on the right of the picture.

From a point of land on the right of the composition rises a tree backed by two bushes. In a companion picture of the same subject, their foliage is yellow, but here it is a greenish-blue. The delicate interlace of leaves and branches fills the right half of the canvas and extends still farther across the sky. A single spray of foliage projects from the left of the canvas and almost meets the other, forming an arch of greenery, through which appears the view of Antibes across the stretch of water. The latter, a delicate green, is streaked with buff and rose reflections of the distant buildings which are grouped about the lighthouse tower and rimmed by a fortified wall. To the right of the town are two detached square structures, presenting lighted surfaces of rosy buff and shadowed sides of blue. Behind them stands a range of hills, misty blue at their base and rosy lavender above, where they melt into the creamy paleness of the sky, which gradually changes at the zenith into softest blue.

We are looking from an elevation, a spur of which projects upon the left of the spot, purple and brown and green-stained. At its base the water in front is blue, changing to mauve where the shadow lessens; but as it races onward through its channel of rocks it gleams in the sunshine, green with mingled tones of dove-gray and deeper green, the latter changing to a deep blue as the water passes into shadow. A little way from us on the right is a low irregular arch of rock, brown, red, green and purple according as the light glints upon its excrescences or loses itself in the furrows. Behind it, across the channel of water, runs a steep wall of brown and greenish-drab cliffs, ruddy atop and shadowed with purple in their receding parts. Projecting from them, almost in the center of the scene, is a sharp pyramid of rock, mounting in successive steps and at its base thrusting out tables of rock into the water, which frolics and foams around them. These cliffs continue across the picture, gradually losing their wildness, until on the left they present smoothly undulating summits of grass against the sky. The rough weather-worn surface of the structure reflects the moonlight in a myriad diversities, the walls glistening coolly, and the roof a maze of rose and silver and frosted lavender. A frost-work of silver also overlays the grass, which is bluish-green in the light and tinged with citron and ruddy brown in the foreground. The upper sky is filled with dove-gray vapor that changes gradually to violet, till it merges imperceptibly into the faint blue of the distant sea. During the inauguration of the Suez Canal there were many celebrations by the natives, but none more interesting than the one which took place at Philæ, and which the artist witnessed there. He made a sketch of the festival on the spot, and the picture is the result of his mature study of the incident. In the cool shadow of the colonnade of a temple a crowd of swarthy natives are gathered to enjoy the performance of the sword dance, which is executed by two young men who are madly leaping, sword in hand and shield on arm, combining the movements of the dance with the action of an assault-at-arms. Two barbaric harpers encourage the dancers with their music, and a minor potentate, with a group of attendants, sits solemnly watching the dance. In the background is the huge façade of a temple with incised figures, and through a great doorway is seen broken ground and a partly ruined temple with columns.

An intimate bit of domestic scenery, showing a narrow placid stream, with overhanging trees, rude fences, and, beyond, cows drinking in the pool, or feeding in the sunlit meadows. Still farther away are seen wooded hills, and farm buildings among the trees, and a glimpse of sky near the horizon. The landscape is varied by strong contrasts of sunshine and shadow, and the sky above the trees shows the deep blue of summer through rolling masses of clouds.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES AND INDEX

ALMA TADEMA, SIR LAURENS

Was born at Dronryp, Friesland, Holland, in 1836, and studied first in the Antwerp Academy and later with Baron Leys. In 1869 he settled in London and established his reputation by the painting "A Pyrrhic Dance," exhibited in the Royal Academy. He has had a most successful career and has received many honors in many countries. He is a member of the Royal Academy and of various other art institutions, and was knighted a few years ago in recognition of his eminence in the profession.

BARON, CHARLES ANTOINE HENRI

Was born at Besançon in 1816, and was a pupil of Gigoux at Paris. He exhibited his first picture in the Salon in 1840, and was a popular genre painter, dealing generally with motives chosen from the eighteenth century.

54—A GAME OF BOWLS

BARYE, ANTOINE LOUIS

A son of Paris, where he was born in 1795, Barye became a pupil of Bosio and Gros and of the École des Beaux Arts. But his real inspiration came from Buffon, Lamarck and Cuvier, and from the fine collection of animals in the Jardin des Plantes. So by his studies of animals he widened the range of French sculpture, at the same time strengthening the protest against the classic restriction of study to the nude human form, and illustrating the grandeur of broad and massive style over that of minute detail. He died in Paris in 1875.

110—TIGER IN THE DESERT

BASTERT, NICOLAAS

Born at Amsterdam, 1858. Pupil of the Amsterdam Academy. A talented landscape painter. His work is refined and his inspiration received directly from nature. He is at his best when painting still rivers which reflect the trees along their borders. The paintings he sent to the Chicago Exposition were all bought by connoisseurs of the United States. He has exhibited in Paris, Munich, Chicago, Amsterdam and The Hague with success, receiving a medal in each city.

BIERSTADT, ALBERT, N. A.

Born in Düsseldorf, 1830. Brought to America at an early age. In 1853 he returned to Düsseldorf and entered the Academy there; afterward he also studied in Rome, Switzerland and Germany. Elected a member of the National Academy in 1860, and later appointed Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, France. In 1867 he was sent to Europe upon a Government commission, to make studies for a painting of the "Discovery of the North River by Hendrik Hudson." Several of his paintings are owned by the United States Government.

BLOMMERS, B. T.

Born at The Hague, 1844. Pupil of The Hague Academy. He first exhibited in 1869 at The Hague, where his painting was hung next to one by Israels. This led to a friendship between them, from which we may suppose the young artist profited much. Jovial and good-natured, he enters readily into sympathy with the common people, and his Dutch interiors tell the story of their home life. His works hang in the museums at Amsterdam, The Hague, Rotterdam, Munich, etc. He has received several medals.

Was born at Ferrara, Italy, in 1845. He studied first in Florence and painted in his native country until 1872, when he went to Paris and soon made a reputation as a painter with brilliant technique, which he has sustained with success.

52—IN THE GARDEN

BONHEUR, M^{LE}. MARIE ROSA (DECEASED)

Born at Bordeaux, March 22, 1822. Pupil of her father, Raymond B. Bonheur. Her first two pictures, exhibited at Bordeaux, 1841, attracted much attention, and were followed by others which established her world-wide fame. During the Franco-Prussian War her studio and residence were respected by special order of the Crown Prince of Prussia. Elected member of Antwerp Institute in 1868. Medals, 1845, 1848, 1855, 1867 (Exposition Universelle). Legion of Honor, 1865. Leopold Cross, 1880. Commander's Cross of Royal Order of Isabella the Catholic, 1880. Died May 10, 1899.

62—THE ARTIST'S PONY

BOSBOOM, JOHANNES (DECEASED)

Born at The Hague, 1817; died there, 1892. Pupil of B. J. Van Hove. Bosboom is now recognized as one of Holland's best painters. Since his death his works have rapidly been absorbed into collections. He was unexcelled in his specialty of church interiors.

Beautifully drawn and executed, they are filled with air and also with the suggestion of those sentiments that are inspired by the grand architecture that has been a silent witness of great events in Holland's history. His landscapes are also full of fine feeling. He received many honors; none that he greater esteemed than to be chosen, as he was in July, 1885, to unveil Rembrandt's masterpiece in the new museum at Amsterdam.

Was born at Canterbury, England, in 1803. He was a student in the schools of the Royal Academy, London, and was for a few months a pupil of Verboeckhoven, whose manner influenced him permanently. He painted a large number of cattle and sheep pictures, and lived to a great age, dying in 1902.

99—MORNING IN THE HIGHLANDS

COROT, JEAN BAPTISTE CAMILLE

Was born at Paris in 1796; a pupil of Michallon and of Bertin. He made several trips to Italy, where he painted landscapes in a formal, academic manner. After he was forty years of age he developed the manner of painting which made him famous, and when he died, in 1875, he was recognized as the foremost landscape painter of his time.

69—LANDSCAPE

CORREGGIO, ANTONIO (ATTRIBUTED)

Born at Correggio in 1494. His real name was Antonio Allegri, and he was probably a pupil of his uncle Lorenzo and of Antonio Bartolotti, both artists in his native town. Little is accurately known, however, about his training in art, and he probably never left the confines of his native province. His work is chiefly remarkable for its luminous quality, for the skilful management of light and shade and for the sweetness of expression and grace of the figures he painted. Died in 1534.

105—CHERUBS

COURTAT, LOUIS

Was born at Paris, and studied at the École des Beaux Arts under Cabanel. He is chiefly known as a painter of academic historical subjects.

203—HAGAR AND ISHMAEL

COX, DAVID

Was born at Dulwich, England, in 1809, and was the pupil of his father, David Cox, senior. He was an associate of the Royal Water Color Society and painted chiefly scenes in Wales. Died at Strathan Hill in 1885.

1—LANDSCAPE

2—A SCENE IN WALES

DE BEAUMONT, CHARLES ÉDOUARD

Born at Lannion, France, in 1821. He went to Paris as a student, and became the pupil of Boisselier. He first called attention to himself as a landscape painter, but he became interested in figures and made a considerable reputation as a painter of genre subjects as well as an illustrator of books. He exhibited first in the Salon in 1838.

49—IN THE STUDIO

DE DREUX, ALFRED

Was born at Paris in 1812, and studied under Cogniet. He painted portraits as well as genre and was well known in both branches of art. Died in 1860.

50—RATS

DE JONGHE, GUSTAVE

82—AFTER THE BALL

DE LONGPRÉ, PAUL

Born in the city of Lyons, France, 1855. Before reaching ten years of age he had shown decided talent, and was soon after assisting his father, who was employed making designs for the famous silk looms of Lyons. In addition to this he was making flower decorations on fans, which commanded ready sale, and this naturally led to his painting flower pieces, which he took up with enthusiasm. His success caused him to visit Paris, where he soon gained recognition for his work and its admission to the Annual Salon. He came to America in 1890, and his work has attracted wide attention.

142—WILD FLOWERS

143—LILACS

DETAILLE, CHARLES

Is the brother of the famous painter of military subjects, Édouard Detaille, and although by no means so widely known as the latter, maintains a popular reputation for his carefully treated subjects of Parisian life.

32—THE PIGEON SHOOTING GROUND—BOIS DE BOULOGNE.

DIAZ, NARCISSE VIRGILE DE LA PEÑA

Was born at Bordeaux in 1807. His father died while he was a boy and his mother brought him to Sèvres, where he was employed for some time in the porcelain manufactory. The influence of the painters at Barbizon soon attracted him to that place, and he shortly made a reputation as a painter of landscape and of idealistic figure subjects. Died in 1876.

67—NYMPH AND CUPID

156—LANDSCAPE

DORÉ, GUSTAVE PAUL

Born in Strasburg in 1833. His drawings date from 1844, and at fifteen years old he accepted a position in Paris upon the staff of the Journal pour Rire. The same year he exhibited some pen-and-ink drawings at the Salon. In 1855 appeared his first oil painting, "Battle of the Alma," but he did not attract notice until 1863, with "Paolo and Francesca da Rimini." During the seventies he produced a series of colossal sacred subjects, which prove him to have been possessed of a wealth of imagination and an astounding facility of hand. He died in Paris in 1883.

30—CIRQUE DE GAVARNIE

124—DEVIL'S BRIDGE—SWITZERLAND

DU CHATTEL, F. J.

Born at Leyden, 1856. Pupil of Willem Maris. Of a happy and joyous temperament, he usually presents nature in her brighter and more attractive moods. There is great charm in nearly all his work, and also a certain ideality that is always delightful. His subjects are well conceived and well executed. Examples of his work are in the museums of Amsterdam, Rotterdam and The Hague.

18—ON THE RIVER VECHT

140—LANDSCAPE

DUPRÉ, JULES

Was born at Nantes in 1812. As a youth he worked in the porcelain manufactory at Sèvres, but by diligent study he emancipated himself from that branch of art and became one of the leaders of the Barbizon group. Died in 1889.

141—ON THE LAGOON

GARCIA Y RAMOS

195—GUITAR PLAYER

GÉRÔME, JEAN LÉON

Was born at Vesoul, France, in 1824. He studied in Paris under Paul Delaroche, by whom he was strongly influenced. He has painted a wide range of subjects with almost unvarying success, and has, moreover, executed a number of statues which are considered by many to be his masterpieces. He has received many honors, among others that of membership of the Institute of France, and continues to practise his profession with zeal and diligence.

72—A GIRL OF SMYRNA

77—TIGER IN REPOSE

164—SWORD DANCERS

GIFFORD, R. SWAIN, N.A.

Born on the Island of Naushon, Mass., 1840. In 1864 he studied in New Bedford under the marine painter, Albert van Beest, and two years later settled in New York, where he practised as a landscape painter and etcher. He made sketching tours in California and Oregon in 1869, and through Europe and North Africa in 1870, and again four years later. He was one of the founders of the American Water-Color Society in 1866, and is also a member of the British Society of Painter-Etchers.

192—STILL LIFE

HERMANN, LEO

38—A CHOICE VINTAGE

HOMER, WINSLOW, N.A.

Was born at Boston, Mass., in 1836. When he was twenty-three years of age he came to New York and studied in the Academy Schools and under F. Rondel. He was well known as an illustrator during the Rebellion, and has always painted American subjects.

46—RETURNING FROM THE SPRING

HUNT, ALFRED WILLIAM

Born at Liverpool in 1831. He was son of a landscape painter, from whom he received instruction; but he did not turn his attention to painting as a profession until after he graduated at Oxford. He has been an active member of the Royal Society of Painters in Water Colors for many years, and is popular and successful in his particular branch of art.

119—FRUIT AND BERRIES

INDUNO, GIROLAMO

Girolamo Induno, like his brother Domeniço, studied under Sabatelli in Milan, his native city, and took an active part in the struggle which ended in Italian independence. In 1859, after the Austrians had been expelled, he settled down in Milan to the practice of his art and produced some excellent genre work; one of his best pictures being the "Departure of the Conscripts in 1866," which hangs in the Royal Palace at Milan.

6—THE COLLECTOR

INNESS, GEORGE

Was born at Newburgh, N. Y., in 1825. He was a pupil for one month only of Régis Gignoux, and, at various times, spent several years in Europe, chiefly in Italy, where he painted many pictures. He is best known, however, by his paintings of American landscapes, in which line he had almost phenomenal success. Died in 1894.

162—TWILIGHT

ISRAELS, JOSEF

Born at Amsterdam, Holland, in 1824. He studied in his native town under Kruseman, and later in Paris under Picot. He has lived for a long time at The Hague, and, although he has painted pictures being the "Departure of the Conscripts in 1866," which hangs in the Royal Palace at Milan.

135—MOTHER AND CHILD

JACQUE, CHARLES ÉMILE

Was born at Paris in 1813, and began life as a map engraver. It was not until 1861 that he began to attract public notice with his pictures of landscapes and animals. He was the last survivor of the Barbazon group. Died in 1894.

172—A BARN INTERIOR WITH SHEEP

JACQUET, JEAN GUSTAVE

Was born at Paris in 1846, and was a pupil of Bouguereau. He has painted many noteworthy portraits and genre pictures, all of them showing traces of his master's influence.

40—FEMALE DRUMMER

JIMENEZ, LUIS

Was born in Seville, Spain, in 1845, and is recognized as a skilful painter of small genre subjects. He was a member of the Spanish-French coterie which flourished in Paris about twenty-five years ago.

51—ON THE GARDEN WALL

JOHNSON, DAVID, N.A.

Born at New York in 1827. He showed early in life a distinct aptitude and a taste for art, and received at one time a few lessons from J. F. Cropsey, N.A. He has never been abroad, and although he has admired and studied the works of European masters of landscape, he has worked in his own way, which has proved a very successful and individual one. He was made a National Academician in 1862, received a medal at the Centennial Exhibition in 1876 and was one of the founders of the Artists' Fund Society.

104—LANDSCAPE AND FIGURES

95—LE BATAILLON CARRÉ—WATERLOO

LAFARGE, JOHN, N. A.

Born in New York in 1835. He received a classical education, and his father's house in Washington Square was a rendezvous of cultivated people, many of them émigrés of the French Revolution or refugees from San Domingo. He was taught to draw by his grandfather, Binsse Saint-Victor, a miniature painter of some talent. Visiting Europe, he continued the study of art, as an accomplishment, and presented himself to Couture, who recommended him to copy the drawings of the old masters. This he did with assiduity at the Louvre and in Munich and Dresden. Next he made a short stay in England, where the color-aims of the pre-Raphaelites attracted his interest. Returning home, he entered a lawyer's office, until finally, by the advice of William Morris Hunt, he determined to take up art as a profession. He first settled at Newport, Rhode Island, subsequently moving to New York. He passed from landscape to figure subjects, and among his early works drawings such as those in illustration of Browning's poems take high rank.

116—WATER LILIES

LAMBERT, LOUIS EUGÈNE

Was born at Paris in 1825, and was a pupil of Paul Delacroix. He has produced many successful genre pictures, although he is popularly known as a painter of cats.

57—CAT AND KITTENS

LAMBINET, ÉMILE

167—REFRESHMENTS

MAES, NICOLAAS

Was born at Dordrecht in 1632, and was a pupil of Rembrandt. He came under the influence of the Flemish painters, however, and his style resembles them rather than that of his master. Died in 1693.

194—PORTRAIT OF A GENTLEMAN

MATHIEU-LOLLIOT

37—THE CARDINAL

MAUVE, ANTON

Born at Zaandam, Holland, in 1838. He was a pupil of P. F. Van Os, and from his master acquired the habit of painstaking finish which is exemplified in his early works. But after leaving his master he speedily acquired a more free and broad manner, and his work gained also in sentiment and refinement of tone. Both in water color and in oil he has rendered the charm of Holland and of Dutch life in an individual and sympathetic way, and his pictures are full of subtle qualities which are eminently personal. He received medals at the Vienna, Philadelphia, Amsterdam, Antwerp and Paris Expositions. Died in 1888.

Is the son of the eminent painter of historical genre, has closely followed his father's technique and has also painted similar subjects with considerable success.

MEISSONIER, JEAN LOUIS ERNEST

Born at Lyons in 1815. He went to Paris in 1830, and for four months was the pupil of Léon Cogniet. He began his profession as an illustrator of books. He soon began to paint small genre pictures with such perfection of technique that he became known as a master in this branch of art. His long and successful career was distinguished by wide public recognition and by most of the honors an artist can have. Died, 1891.

171—A STANDARD BEARER

MESDAG, HENDRIK WILLEM

Born at Groningen, 1831. Pupil of W. Roelofs. He became a professional painter when thirty-five years of age, having previously been in his father's banking establishment. The sea is his delight, and the ever-varying effects of morning, noon and evening he has painted in canvases which are widely distributed. He is the most famous of Holland's marine painters; is very wealthy and a hard worker; president of the artists' society, "Pulchri Studio," and the happy and satisfied possessor of many honors and decorations.

165—LADY READING

MEYER VON BREMEN, JOHAN GEORG

Born at Bremen in 1813, from which circumstance he took his last name. He studied in Düsseldorf and became a most popular painter of genre subjects. He was for many years a professor in the Academy at Berlin. He died in 1886.

168—FAMILY GROUP

MILLET, JEAN FRANÇOIS

Born at Gruchy in the commune of Gréville, France. After many discouragements he succeeded in going to Paris to study his chosen profession, assisted in this step by the municipality of Cherbourg. He entered the École des Beaux Arts under Paul Delaroche, but, having no sympathy with academic art, soon left the school and began to paint pictures. In 1848 he went to Barbizon, where, after many struggles, he succeeded in gaining recognition as the most eminent painter of his time in the line he had chosen to follow.

170—PORTEUSE DE LAIT

MONET, CLAUDE

Born at Paris in 1840. "The accursed place"—thus Monet stigmatized the studio of Gleyre, in which for a week or two he was a pupil. He was drawing from the living model, and the master, in criticising, said: "You are keeping too close to the model; you are copying its defects." This was too much for Monet. "Why not abandon the model and draw from the cast?" was his indignant comment to his fellow-students Renoir and Sisley. The three seceded from the studio. Thus began and ended Monet's scholastic experience. Eugène Boudin, the sailor and marine painter, had already urged him to paint in the open air. Hereafter he did so. "Although born in Paris and passing my childhood in Havre," he said one day, "I have always lived in the country or on the sea-coast, except from 1864-1866, when I had a studio in Paris. Since 1883 I have lived at Giverny on the Seine." It is a simple statement, but contains the whole story of his life as an artist. Nearly half a century spent in the country, loving, studying and seeking to depict it! His parents did all they could to discourage his adopting art as a profession, even welcoming the fact that he was drawn by the conscription for seven years' service in Algiers. But he was seized with a fever, invalided home, bought out of the army by his father and at length, now twenty-two years old, permitted to follow his bent. In 1865 a picture was admitted at the Salon, followed two years later by the acceptance of "The Port of Honfleur" and "Young Woman in the Garden." A large interior, "Le Déjeuner," was refused in '68; others, in '69 and '70. The young man had become dangerously independent! He waited ten years, till 1880; then sent "Les Glaçons sur la Seine," afterwards bought by Mr. H. O. Havemeyer. It was declined. "Pretty hard," was his comment, "but what is one to do?" He has never sent another.

OWEN

PALMAROLI, VINCENTE

Was born at Madrid, Spain, in 1835, and studied at the Academy of Fine Arts, then under Federico Madrago. He established himself as a painter in Rome, and became director of the Spanish Academy there. He has painted portraits as well as genre pictures, but is best known in the latter branch of art.

60—THE SKETCH BOOK

PARSONS, ALFRED, A.R.A.

Born in Somersetshire, England, in 1847. He began life as a clerk in the General Post Office, London, studying drawing and painting in his leisure time, until he finally emancipated himself from his uncongenial occupation and began to paint landscapes. He has illustrated a great deal for American publications. He paints both in oil and in water colors, and is best known, perhaps, for his pictures of flower gardens. He has travelled extensively and painted for a year in Japan. He is an associate of the Royal Academy and a member of the Royal Society of Painters in Water Colors.

112—THE VALLEY

PEARCE, CHARLES SPRAGUE

Was born at Boston, Mass., in 1851. He studied in Paris under Bonnat, and has resided in France for many years, painting genre subjects which have met with much popular appreciation.

199—MUSSEL GATHERERS

PERRAULT, LÉON BAZILE

Was born at Poitiers, France. He entered the École des Beaux Arts at Paris and studied there under Picot and Bouguereau. He has been strongly influenced by the latter painter and has followed his methods with close attention. He is one of the few successful painters of life-sized genre subjects.

98—FRESH WATERMELON

PILSBURY, WILMOT

10—A HILLSIDE PASTURE

POGGENBEEK, GEORGE

Born at Amsterdam, 1855. A true artist, with Mauve's tender feeling for the harmony and sentiment that are in nature, though different from Mauve in subject and manner. There is a beautiful simplicity and a refined poetic feeling in his landscapes. He is very conscientious and produces fewer works than most of his brother artists. His painting is very pure and his technique subtle and charming. He is one of the best water color painters in a country notable for this art.

19—LANDSCAPE AND CATTLE

POIRSON, M.

33—THE DRIVE

PROUT, SAMUEL

Born at Plymouth, England, in 1785. He showed a talent for painting in early youth and, going to London, found a ready sale for his productions. He travelled extensively on the continent and turned his attention particularly to architectural subjects, in which branch of art he is considered a master. He was a member of the Royal Society of Painters in Water Colors, and in addition to painting executed many illustrations for serious books on travel and similar publications. Died in 1852.

120—A SCENE IN ROME

PYNE, THOMAS

He was born at London, and is the son of James B. Pyne, a well-known landscape painter. He has devoted his attention chiefly to water color painting.

128—BISHAM ABBEY—GREAT MARLOW

RAU, EMIL

Was born at Dresden in 1858, and has long painted in Munich under the influence of the realistic school there, devoting his attention to domestic genre.

79—HE LOVES ME

RICO, MARTIN

A native of Madrid, he received his first lessons in drawing from a cavalry captain, and then passed to the Madrid Academy, gaining a living in the intervals of study by drawing, and engraving on wood. During the summers, he would wander off on foot into the country, consorting with gypsies and herdsmen; living a free, happy existence, and laying by a store of memories. He won the Spanish Prix de Rome, never before awarded for excellence in landscape, and chose Paris for his place of study in preference to Rome. Here he was kindly received by his countryman Zamacois, who introduced him to Daubigny and Meissonier. Later he became the intimate friend of Fortuny, with whom he spent much time in Italy. In 1878 he was awarded the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

132—A RIVER SCENE

ROELOFS, WILLEM

Born at Amsterdam, Holland, in 1822. He was a pupil of Winter in Utrecht and of van der Saude-Bakhusen in The Hague. He settled in Brussels in 1848 and became identified with Flemish art, although he never entirely lost his identity. He has received many honors and has a wide reputation.

117—A DUTCH STREAM

ROSA, SALVATOR

Born at Renella, near Naples, in 1615. He studied under various artists, but chiefly profited by the instruction of Amillo Falcone, by whom he was influenced to paint battle scenes. He went to Rome in 1639 and became famous there not only as a painter but as a musician and a satirical poet. His work is notable for great boldness of effect and vigor of movement. Died in 1673.

STACQUET, HENRY

Among the Belgian water colorists Stacquet holds an excellent place, painting with equal facility marines, interiors and street scenes. He received a medal at the Universal Exposition of 1889.

17—A VILLAGE STREET

STORTENBECKER, R. F.

Stortenbecker's landscape and cattle pictures partake of the vigorous realism that distinguishes so many of the modern Dutch painters.

SWAN, JOHN M.

He studied in the schools of the Royal Academy in London and in the École des Beaux Arts at Paris. After his return to England he painted figure subjects of a classical tendency. He soon began to study wild animals, and has not only painted them but has represented them in sculpture with great success. He is very versatile and designs and executes many objects in different metals. He is an associate of the Royal Academy.

5—A NUBIAN

TROYON, CONSTANT

Was born at Sèvres in 1810, and, like several others of the Barbizon school, began his career in the porcelain manufactory there. He studied under Riocreux at Paris, and in the early part of his life painted landscapes exclusively. He received many honors and died in 1865.

66—NORMANDY COWS

TURNER, JOSEPH MALLORD WILLIAM, R.A.

Born in 1775. At the age of fourteen he became a student at the Royal Academy, and in the following year exhibited his first picture, "View of the Archbishop's Palace at Lambeth." He was elected an associate at twenty-four, the youngest age permitted, but the works which he had already exhibited ranged over twenty-six counties of England and Wales. Three years later, in 1802, he was made a full Academician. Up to this date his powers had been chiefly displayed in water colors, of which the most celebrated is the collection of studies in monochrome, which he styled "Liber Studiorum," in imitation of the "Liber Veritatis" of Claude. Thenceforth oil painting mainly occupied his brush, and, as he had beaten all rivals in the other medium, so he set himself to rival Claude, whose preëminence in landscape was then admitted. In the "Dido Building Carthage" of 1815 he may be said to have accomplished this, and for the future devoted himself to eclipsing the French artist—to being Turner. Then followed the maturest period of his art, lasting, perhaps, to his third visit to Italy, in 1840. He never married, and, notwithstanding the fortune he had amassed, lived shabbily. In 1851, during one of his absences from home, he died in a garret in Chelsea.

47—CUIRASSIER

WORMS, JULES

Born at Paris in 1837. He was a pupil of Lafosse, and to his careful training is due the conscientious execution which is notable in the genre pictures for which this artist is famous. He has never left the field of domestic and humorous subjects, and is well known for both his oil and water color works. He received medals at the Salon in 1868 and 1869, at the Expositions of 1867 and 1878, and was made Chevalier of the Legion of Honor in 1878.

59—PREPARING FOR A JOURNEY

ZAMACOIS, EDOUARD

Born in Bilbao, Spain, in 1842. He was first a pupil of Balaco and afterwards of Federico Madrazo in Madrid. Later he went to Paris and studied under Meissonier. His subjects were usually of the period of the seventeenth century and his manner was strongly influenced by his last master. Died in 1871.

ZIEM, FÉLIX

Born at Beaune, Côte-d'Or, in 1821. After studying at the Art School at Dijon, he travelled in Southern France, Italy, and the East. Pictures of Venice and of the Golden Horn first brought him into prominence, and his subsequent work has been a continuation of his early method and impressions, Venice and the Adriatic supplying a majority of his subjects. His popularity has been immense and endorsed by a long list of official honors.
